It is reported that the Bull Reciprocal Motor has been tried a Verdict and failed to perform what its inventor expected. The motor was designed to overcome the force of gravitation and run until its machinery wore out. Scientists say that this cannot be accomplished and the Patent Office at Washington, believing that perpetual motion is an impossibility, will not file a caveat nor issue a patent for a perpetual motion machine unless a working model is placed in the office, and that has not yet been done.

Saloon-keepers and others who deal in cigars would do well to closely study the law enacted by the last Congress in regard to the sale of cigars. Section 2692 of the Revised Statutes says that cigars must be sold to the customer direct from the properly stamped box. A dealer who takes out a handful of cigars and lays them before a buyer to choose from, or a saloonkeeper who brings a customer a cigar on a plate or in a glass, makes himself liable to a fine of $100.

We Draw the Line.

When the writer was a boy and went to school in the State now famous for its wooden nutmegs, he was annually called upon to produce what was known in those days as a "composition," on some subject given out by a teacher who had a bald head and wore colored glasses.

No one but a male was ever asked to write a composition; girls, so to speak, were not in it.

Then came the era of the "paper." Boys wrote "papers" on the general characteristics of an old back number known as Tacitus and Horace. Vigil and old Homer occasionally got a swipe on commencement day.

Then the girls began to write, and they fit with both feet on these occasions in what they called a "treatise." It was written on large first-class paper, and had a blue ribbon tied about it.

Now the sweet girl graduate, who, by the way, grows sweeter every year, comes to the front with a "thesis." A "thesis" is somewhat longer than a "treatise," and has a purple ribbon, not tied about it, but let into the back of the "thesis" through three holes made by a harness-maker's punch. It is very delicate and utter, and embodies the mature ideas of girls who know more about the old Roman Emperors and Grecian poets than people who lived in the day and generation of the aforesaid.

It is a cold day for the editor now who refuses to publish a "thesis" written by a girl. We once did so, and the father of the young lady, who runs a store, has never advertised since in the MORNING APPEAL.

The only consolation we have is that we would rather lose his patronage than print six columns of anybody's "thesis."

Our newspaper has to draw the line somewhere, and we stretch it gently along the edge of the "thesis," about an inch from the ribbons.

Harrison on Free Coinage.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The Gazette to-day in discussing President Harrison's attitude on the subject of silver says:

Mr. Harrison is very uneasy about the feeling in the west in the rear ranks of the Republican party in favor of the free coinage of silver. He is as strongly opposed to this now as he ever was, and will not sign the Silver bill under any pressure but he naturally desires to avoid such a contingency.

It is said that the silver plank in the Ohio platform just adopted, was submitted to Mr. Harrison and approved by him, and that it will be urged by the Republican National Convention as a compromise if the conditions are not changed before that event occurs. The Ohio idea is a simple indorsement of the Coinage Act of the billion dollar Congress, with the argument that it has secured the coinage of all silver the product of American mines.
